

The Bloomfield Record.

(OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE TOWNSHIP.)

M. HULIN, Editor and Proprietor.

FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1875.

All who are interested in having a live newspaper in this village are requested to send us by mail, or to the publishing office, local items of news, correspondence, etc., for publication.

No charge is made for publishing Marriages, Deaths, or Religious Notices. Single numbers of The Record can always be had at this office, at the Post Office, and at the Newsdealers. All kinds of Printing done at The Record Office.

New Jersey Editorial Excursion.

It was announced in our columns last week and is now pretty generally known that the Editor of the Record, is absent from his post, having gone with other New Jersey Editors upon an excursion to O'key Springs, Virginia. Below will be found a communication written while the party were at Chambersburg, Penn., the scene of a Confederate raid under Gen. Early in 1864, when the town was almost entirely destroyed, which is full of interest to all acquainted in that section of the country, or with those who compose the party now enjoying their annual summer vacation.

Chambersburg, Pa., June 21, 1875.

The excursionists began to gather at the Pennsylvania R. R. depot in West Philadelphia as early as 10 o'clock on Monday morning. By 12, nearly the whole party, numbering about 250, had arrived from various points. A special train of seven elegant cars was made up and placed at the disposal of the Association. Soon after half-past twelve the train moved out of the depot, over the Penn. Central Road, passing Fairmount Park, the extensive building operations for the approaching Centennial of American Independence were seen.

The Penn. R. R. Co. furnished a fine lunch, aboard the train, which was served between Philadelphia and Lancaster. The general convenience however, from the rapidity of the traveling. No stoppages were made, except for water, until Harrisburg was reached, where the excursionists were welcomed by Gov. Hartranft and other leading citizens. Here the only change made was a reversing of the cars, and then we were on the Chambersburg and York Road, for Chambersburg. Crossing the Susquehanna by a bridge nearly a mile in length, a fine view of Pennsylvania's Capital city is afforded. The scenery up and down the river is enchanting. On the bank of the river in a quiet spot, visible from the bridge, stands the old "Barricade Monument," a pile of pile of marble, but only the trunk of a great tree, to which the founder of Harrisburg, according to tradition, was bound by hostile Indians.

The beauty and agricultural wealth of the Valley was apparent as soon as we entered it. Rich farms, with tall, waving grain were on every hand, the buildings substantial, a part of brick or stone. As Mechanicsburg, a beautiful and thriving town, the citizens were out and a band played as the train moved slowly through the place, without halting. On entering Carlisle, the first indications of the late civil war were to be seen. Some of the brick houses had been struck by shells, a part of Lee's army having passed through the town on their way to Gettysburg, July 1, 1863. Some of the owners, in repairing the damage, have imbedded in the holes made by the shells pieces of marble bearing the date, "July, 1863." A hall was made at Carlisle, long enough to enable the party to stroll around the Campus of the venerable Dickinson College, one of the oldest in the land. It was first erected in 1787, but destroyed by fire and rebuilt in 1804.

Arriving at Chambersburg about six o'clock, a most cheerful welcome was extended by the people. A committee of citizens, took charge of the excursionists, and escorted them to their respective hotels. Carriages were sent to give the delegates an opportunity to ride out and see the various points of interest. It was our fortune to ride with a Dr. Bondi, who, gave the party from Bordentown, and Bloomfield a graphic account of his experience at the battle of Chambersburg. We visited the Wilson Female College, situated a little north of the town. It is a handsome structure. The buildings are very fine, the grounds laid out in artistic style.

During the evening a welcome was given by the citizens in Repository Hall. The ladies of Chambersburg were there, presiding over tables loaded with refreshments and flowers. The committee of citizens designated by the delegates, were on the floor to meet the delegates as they arrived. At nine o'clock the hall was well filled. A member of Congress from this borough, the Hon. Mr. Stenger addressed the Association on behalf of Chambersburg. He was followed by Col. M. R. Hamilton, of Newark, who responded for the Editors of Newark. Mr. John Y. Foster also made a brief but stirring speech. A fine band which was in attendance, took position upon the stage and, after a short concert, lent music while the ladies of Chambersburg dispensed ice-cream, strawberries and other refreshments to their guests. It was the opinion of all that nothing could exceed the cordial, heart-felt welcome extended to the New Jersey editors and their families, at this place. It was an occasion long to be remembered.

The Floral Concert to be given at the Presbyterian Church, next Wednesday evening, June 30th., will without doubt be an entertainment affording a rare musical treat to our citizens. The young ladies dressed in white and personating the different flowers, will assemble in a grove to choose a Queen, and a Recess, who has sought seclusion from the trials and cares of the world, is won back by their songs of Love and Duty, and resolves to be useful again. The Rose, which is represented by one of Bloomfield's favorite singers, is chosen the loveliest of flowers, and crowned Queen. The part of Recess will be sung by Mr. J. R. Wheeler of Orange, whose ability as a singer is so favorably esteemed in this vicinity; and the whole Cantata consisting of Solos, Recesses, and Choruses, will afford to all lovers of sweet music an unusual opportunity of spending a delightful evening.

Geo. Batzle, Jr., has taken the new stand lately occupied by G. C. Lind, on Glenwood avenue, under The Record office. He will keep the daily and weekly papers for sale, also stationery, cigars, fireworks, etc.

Tweed's Release.

William M. Tweed's transfer from Blackwell's Island to New York, was accomplished on Tuesday evening last, and another act added to the already too long drama of the city of New York against corruption. The papers of that city team with opinions expressed by editorial writers of different political opinions, concerning the legality or illegality of the methods by which his release from Blackwell's Island has been secured. That he is a great criminal and, deserving of severe punishment, no one will be foolish enough to deny, but it hardly seems in good taste to call in question a legal decision rendered by the highest judicial tribunal of the State, after a very careful, patient and exhaustive examination of the facts, as is evinced by the opinion of the learned judges already published. To be taken from one prison to another would upon first thought seem to be little gained; but a careful consideration will show that it is really a great one. No longer does Tweed wear the degrading stripes of a convicted felon, nor is he compelled to labor, or sleep in a narrow cell, and eat the coarse and unpalatable food usually dealt out to convicts, but he can use his own taste in dress, eat anything for which he has a desire and is able to pay for and employ his time in the way that may afford him the most comfort and satisfaction. The same Judge who imposed upon him the illegal sentence by which he has been kept for nearly two years on the island down the bay, has been compelled by an order from a higher tribunal than the one over which he presides, to sign an order releasing Tweed from confinement under the sentence imposed by himself. Humiliating as this must be to Judge Davis, Tweed cannot help enjoying the relief inflicted upon his judicial reputation, and during the leisure hours he may spend in his new place of incarceration, he might perhaps with profit, resolve in his own mind the question of demanding satisfaction for the eight or nine months of his imprisonment which the Court of Appeals has declared to be illegal. There is a great difference between setting a man free by law, or through Executive clemency, and this too much has a tendency to raise the spirits of Tweed and give him additional confidence in the ability of his counsel, who have succeeded in the old suit and are now engaged upon the new. To assume therefore that Tweed is not better off to-day than he was a week or fortnight ago in his prison garb, is perfectly folly. Though arrested upon one indictment he gave bail and Judge Brady will next week hear counsel upon a motion to quash. In default of three million dollars bail, he is still held on the civil suit at Ludlow Street Jail, but attempts will be made to get the bail reduced, which if successful will enable this great criminal to again walk the streets of that city he so unmercifully plundered. No doubt were he to at once dispossess all his ill-gotten wealth and show a little repentance for his wicked acts, the prosecuting officers, would abandon the suit and enter a nolle prosequi, against the new indictment, while his fellow citizens and the country at large would doubtless say unto him, "We forgive you go and sin no more."

Letter from Canada.

Fort William Henry Hotel, Lake George, June 21st, 1875. Dear Record—I don't know that you will know anything I may write you, and I hardly know where to begin or when to stop. I have so many treasures (?) of information to communicate, but the spirit has just moved me to employ a few spare moments in improving my style of penmanship. Colburn Canada (Ontario) lies on the northern shore of Lake Ontario about midway between Hamilton and Kingston, is a quiet little city, with a mayor and a population of about 5,000 men, women and children, especially the women, but more of them present. It is somewhat of a novelty to me to go to a shop (all stores are shops) and purchase four shillings worth of "traps," and then pay 50 cents in silver. First going to an Exchange office and selling a greenback dollar for 80 cents also to find out if your purchases amount to $1 or 25 cents, then 20 cents in shillings, is the least that will satisfy the shop keeper, in fact our Canadian customs in this respect are a feeling of humiliation when offering twenty dollars to pay a hotel bill, but I have the cashier look at it, then at me, and remark, "That is worth seventeen dollars," but I was not then reminded that old England expended a large sum of money to keep the Empire in a suspension of belief that of hers. Currency is not the only Canadian virtue which excels ours. Their hospitality is especially noticeable and praiseworthy and we might well imitate them in this. Colburn is truly and heartily recommended for its young ladies. I must confess that at first afternoon stroll let me be struck with its wealth of healthy smiling faces borne with a jaunty saucy diction above graceful forms. I could not but admire.

Sunday morning found me seated at a second seat (front) in St. Peter's Episcopal church, with the choir directly in front of me, and I wondered where all the men were, for the choir was composed of 18 ladies and 5 gentlemen. I don't want to find fault with any body, but I did want to "get up in meeting" and tell them not to "drag." I don't say the whole burden of this "dragging" instance on Canadian shoulders, for even in Bloomfield where they know better sometimes suffer fearfully. But was it the fault of the leader there, he was tugging away with ocean and voice, and he pulled well, but all he could get them to do was to follow. With this exception the music was good and while I am speaking of music I must just tell you how the choir I like. Pres. "Joy to the World the Lord is Come" yesterday. The choir here sang the "Hallelujah" part, and it did lead with a vengeance, lead so far that the other parts never caught up, and the song was not finished "before" that of the bass began. I wanted to "speak" but, modesty forbade.

Breda are all the more here, I have succeeded in counting eleven besides my own. They try to play the old married woman and I presume they think they satisfied that they do. They play well, but the game is transparent.

Mr. George Seymour and family have returned from the west, and are boarding at the Park House.

Mr. Frederic McDowell, after an absence of more than a year, in California, has returned to Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seymour, of New York, are visiting on Beach St. at Rev. E. Seymour's.

The Local News.

There was quite a treat in music last Monday afternoon from the different bands on their way to the Odd Fellows' Picnic.

The picnic of the Odd Fellows and their families at Weaver's Grove Tuesday afternoon and evening was largely attended, and all enjoyed a pleasant time.

The Young Men's Union of the Methodist Church propose giving an entertainment on or about July 7th, of which due notice will be given.

On Monday evening last Officer Perry arrested John Constantine for being drunk and disorderly and took him before Justice Cox who committed him to Newark for five days.

A fine shower of rain on Wednesday served to somewhat relieve the dusty condition of our streets and avenues and was very refreshing to vegetation as well as to plants of larger growth.

On Sunday last Officer Geo. W. Perry arrested five small boys who he found bathing in the canal. They were taken before Justice Cox, who dismissed them with a severe reprimand, it being their first offense.

Simeon Kriesler who as reported in last week's Record, was arrested for shooting John Gearring, had a further examination before Justice Day on Monday last and was discharged for want of sufficient evidence to convict.

The Baptists believe in immersion and plenty of water, consequently they cannot find fault with the grading of Franklin street, which is now so graded that all the surface water will flow towards them. As long as it does not flow in upon them no great harm will be done.

We acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt, last Thursday, of a box of unusually fine strawberries, from Messrs. E. & J. C. Williams, of Montclair. They were of the choice variety known as the "Charles Downing," and proved to be excellent in flavor, as well as manliness in size—the finest and largest berries we have seen this season.

Conductor Corby of the D. L. & W. R. R. is a very accommodating man, but for all that he does not care to stop his train at any point on the road, where it may best suit the convenience of a local editor to get off, and by so doing cause delay and annoyance to three or four cars full of passengers. His refusal was as polite and pleasant as his rebuke, which was well merited.

A fair will be held in the parlor of Westminster Chapel next Tuesday evening, June 29th, by the Children's Society connected with the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. Besides some very pretty articles of the children's own work, a few choice curiosities from Canton, China, will be offered for sale for the benefit of the mission. Let there be a good attendance and so encourage the children.

Now that the inhabitants of Montclair are moving in the matter of having a suitable lock-up for the detention of persons arrested, would it not be well for our citizens to take some steps toward having one in this village? That it is greatly needed no one will deny, and perhaps the building of one would have a salutary effect upon the criminal class and be preventive of some crime.

The Chairman and Secretary of the late Annual meeting of the Bloomfield Library Association have called a special meeting, to be held at Euclid Hall, on Monday evening next, June 25th, at 8 o'clock. The necessity for this meeting is stated to be the resignation of the entire board of Directors recently elected, each of them having declined to serve. The charter and by-laws do not make any provision for this contingency, hence the importance of having as full a meeting as possible of all who are interested in the affairs of the Association, now left in a disorganized condition.

The Amateur Entertainment, second season, given at the residence of Mr. J. H. Chambers last Friday night, was an immense success. A large audience of invited guests—more than could be provided with seats—were present. All were kept in a state of perpetual mirth, from the rising of the curtain to the going down of the same. The entertainment was of the variety known as "Colored Opera," and the various members of the company acquitted themselves in a thoroughly creditable manner. The last piece, especially, called the "Baby Elephant," was received with screams of laughter. The conclusion of all was a social reunion among the audience while refreshments were served.

Last Sunday at the M. E. Church was a day of much interest. In the morning the pastor Rev. E. W. Burr delivered a very interesting and instructive discourse to the children upon flowers. In the afternoon Rev. G. W. Smith of Montclair, Rev. Mr. Barnes of Newark, and Rev. Mr. Spelmeyer a former pastor, were present and made some appropriate and pleasing addresses. At the evening service Rev. Mr. Parks of Orange, occupied the pulpit and preached an eloquent sermon. The church was most tastefully decorated with floral emblems and presented a beautiful appearance. The singing by the choir under the lead and direction of J. W. Snelcker, was as usual, of a high order, and worthy of special mention. Neither can too much credit be given to those who so tastefully decorated the interior of the edifice.

State Items.

The Jersey City Public Baths were opened on Monday last.

The last issue of the Passaic Item, has its front page embellished with an elegant cut of the West Rutherford Park Hotel.

Mrs. Grant rides out in a four-in-hand occasionally at Long Branch, accompanied usually by Mrs. Childs and Mrs. Sartoris. The turnout is unostentatious, the coachman and footman wearing plain black livery and the horses having no gilded or gaudy trappings.

Elias M. Vanderhorst, who disappeared from Passaic on Wednesday, was found at 10 o'clock on Thursday night wedged into the Midland Railway trestle-work at Hackensack, having fallen in and become so fastened between the timbers that he was unable to extricate himself.

A number of the cases of small-pox at Dundee have proved fatal. The neighborhood has been quarantined by the city authorities, and every effort made to check the further spread of the disease, and we are happy to say with success, as the number of cases are diminishing.

Mr. Geo. B. Smith, a resident of Passaic, who has been associated with Hon. Henry McDonald in the real estate and insurance business, was attacked with pneumonia on Thursday, June 10th. He suffered severely until the following Tuesday evening at a quarter before 8 o'clock when death relieved him from his sufferings.

George Geisler, alias George Moore, a young man nineteen years of age, boarded an Erie Railway oil train Saturday evening to ride home. When the train reached a point nearest his home, he jumped off, and missing his footing fell beneath the cars. The wheels passed over him, cutting off both legs. He was removed to St. Mary's Hospital, where he died at 8 o'clock this morning.

St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, edifice of the Passionist Fathers, West Hoboken, was packed last Sunday at the blessing of the great bells that are to peal in the eastern dome of the structure. There were no seats save for the clergy, and the large crowd stood patiently throughout the ceremony. Inside the space allotted for the altar rail were the three bells festooned with flowers, their great tongues hung exposed toward the audience, held up by stout billets of wood. Each was appropriately inscribed by the Latin text, which was read out named after the patron saint of the church—"St. Michael"—weighed 3,040 pounds. The next in size weighed 1,500 pounds, and was named "St. Joseph." The third was christened "St. Paul of the Cross."

Way-side Notes.

The Princess of Wales lost an ear-ring, but the cockney element of England pronounced it "hoaring," and thus the report of the Princess of Wales was deaf got abroad.

Some one suggests that more seats should be placed in the vestibules of churches for the benefit of the young men who come to walk home with the young ladies without wishing to attend divine service themselves.

The Holyoke disaster is creating a demand in all large cities that the doors of public buildings be made to swing outward. The custom of hanging doors in that manner has long been followed in Canada, where it is rightly enforced by law.

A writer in a Brooklyn paper says that an ice-cream dealer said to him: "Elderly ladies long ago called for ice-cream like chocolate, young ladies take strawberry, and the quite pert misses ask for orange, peach, and mixed flavors."

There are four hundred religious journals in the United States. The Methodistists have forty seven, the largest number; then come the Catholics, who number forty-one; the Baptists, thirty-five; Presbyterians, twenty-nine; the Episcopalians, twenty-one; the Lutherans, fourteen; German Reformed, fourteen; Jews, nine, and Congregationalists, eight.

As soon as the baby's teething begins, the romance of married life ceases. No woman can feel any sentiment for a man who travels around in his night-shirt of a boy's summer's eve, with a squalling infant dangling over his shoulder. It is in fact that she stops calling him "darling," and begins to call him "baby."

The geologists of the Wheeler expedition have discovered in southern Utah a field of lava 5,000 square miles in extent, and in Arizona and New Mexico an area of about 20,000 square miles in extent. From the existence of these immense and connected fields of lava the surmise is that volcanic eruptions have occurred in the western Territories so recently that it is indeed surprising that there is no human record of them.

The papers in announcing the marriage of Miss Singer, the daughter of the late Mr. Singer, make a remark about the bride's dowry being $1,000,000. This is a very nice wedding present and we hope that the fortunate young lady will be becomingly grateful to the poor sewing women of the country who help to make it. It is taken out of these poor people's pockets by means of the sewing machine monopoly, which enables these manufacturers to sell machines for four or five times their cost, and to amass enormous fortunes.

St. Nicholas for July—Opens strongly and does not flag to the end. Its list of contributors is headed by three of the most popular female writers for children—Betty Cooke, Emily Hamilton Miller and Louise M. Alcott. The number has also one of the liveliest and most natural boys' stories that has appeared for months, written by Rosette Johnson and entitled "A Great Speculation." No true boy will fail to appreciate it. Then there is an article on "How to Make a Boat" which will doubtless set hammer and saw to going, and introduce to the waters of lake or river many a shipshanty built by the same young hands and arms that man it. Our patriotic pride is awakened by the fine portraits and anecdotes of "American Quakers"—and the Fourth of July spirit is addressed by an historical sketch of the first naval battle in America waters one hundred years ago, and by the contrasted pictures of "Our Flag" then and now. The account by a Nebraska woman of "How the Grasshoppers Came," thoroughly proves its authorship by the severe of reality in its vivid portrayal of the devastation and dismay which followed the coming of these small but destructive marauders. Susan Coolidge and Sarah O. Jewett contribute two capital stories for girls. The poems of the number are excellent; the illustrations are up to the usual standard of St. Nicholas, which leaves nothing to be desired; and there are as many more attractions in the number as those we have mentioned.
